Adventure on the lake

It was a beautiful summer day, when Lily and her friends James, Joe, Mary and Taylor decided to go to the Blue Lake to swim and sunbathe. James said that he would take his father's rubber boat, so friends were excited about the day which was going to be a lot of fun.

They got to the lake and James put out a boat. Friends decided to go to the little picturesque island in the middle of the Blue Lake. They sat in the boat and started their journey. The lake was surrounded by mountains which left beautiful grey reflections on the crystal-clear water, the sky was blue and everyone was in a good mood. Everything was perfect until Lily heard the air coming out of the boat.

It meant that the boat was going to sink. James knew what to do: "Lily, close the hole with your hand! Joe, Mary, you do the same." Friends stopped panicking for a minute and did what James said. However, it was obvious that the boat would sink before they get back. Suddenly Taylor shouted: "I'm jumping in the water." The air started to come out of the boat less fast after that. Friends returned to the coast in the boat and Taylor swam back herself.

People say: "A journey is best measured in friends rather than miles" and that day friends realised it was true. It was a memorable day despite the fact that they didn't visit the island because they spent it together.
