A true adventure with a true friend.

John was a successful man with his ^{great} ~~endless~~ fortune and beloved job. He had neither family nor friends because his addiction was money.

One summer John decided to go on the best trip in his life. It was his style to do what he wanted. Australia had always been on his bucket list and John understood that it was time to fulfil his dream. He immediately bought a ticket and when a woman asked ~~if he~~ him whether he would go with his family ~~and~~ friends ~~or not~~ John answered with no hesitation: "No family and friends - no stress and no panic!" An hour later he was heading to the airport in the taxi. There was silence in the car because John had no one to talk with.

Just in a second everything changed. There was a car crash on the road ~~crossroad~~. Two cars ran into each other and one of these cars was the car with John. Everything went ~~to~~ black. John immediately lost consciousness.

"What are you doing? Don't even touch me!" - shouted John with anger.

"Sorry, but I'm saving you!" - answered a driver.

"What? But why? Do you know me?" - wondered John. "No, but friends always help ^{you} when you are in a trouble; ~~Are we friends?~~ especially if ~~the~~ ^{the} person is as lonely as you are," - the driver answered.

here and there John understood everything. All his life was wrong. His miles of adventures weren't about true happiness. That was the moment when his best journey happened - his journey with ^{the} first friend. "A journey is best measured in friends rather than in miles," said John with ~~in~~ a relief, going home with a new best friend.
