Proposal of a new service for the library

Introduction

The aim of this proposal is to suggest a new service the library could provide after its expansion and to outline the benefits of the aforementioned service.

Description of the service

Most libraries nowadays have computers with free Internet access. This should not be the exception. I suggest equipping the library with several desktop computers that will be connected to the Internet.

Equipment and organizational information

To implement this idea, firstly, a special area with electrical outlets for the computers should be chosen. Apart from the computers themselves, the school will need to buy desks and chairs, as well as various computer accessories such as mice, mouse pads, and keyboards. Additionally, I would suggest buying several pairs of headphones so that the sounds from the computers would not distract other students. Lastly, the computers need to be connected to the Internet.

Benefits of this service

Although this purchase will be costly, it will undoubtedly prove beneficial to the school and the students. Having modern equipment in the library will certainly raise the school's prestige. Furthermore, the library's database can be uploaded onto the computers, making it easier to find certain books. The students will have a place to study in quiet. This service is especially relevant for students who cannot afford a personal computer.

Conclusion

In conclusion, I believe that the purchase of computers for the library will benefit the school and its students tremendously. I hope the planning committee will consider my proposal.
