An Expanding Proposal

As the school library is planning to be expanded, our students came up with a few suggestions they sorted and verbalized to help the committee fulfill their needs.

Being a head of the students' needs department, I want to propose ^{the} following service to the planning committee, since ^{it} I am granted with this kind of permission.

People are in need for computers. Many students do not have time or equipment to work on some kind of assignments ~~from~~ ^{at} home, so the library might become a perfect place for doing that. The equipment is standard: a personal computer, ^a desk and a chair. It won't cost as much as people think it will, but the amount of practical benefits will be a reward. Students will have a quiet place to ~~study~~ ^{work} on their online assignments with help of library books and, of course, the Internet. Everyone will visit the library as it may become an ideal, the most perfect school facility.

With this being said, I am fully sure that adding a couple of computers, expanding not only the library services, but the school's Wi-Fi coverage square, would improve it and help our students work more efficiently and improve ^{also} their learning skills to achieve higher goals and showing better results.

Respectfully, I ask you to accept this proposal.
