«Happiness around us». Jane Baker and her new story. →

I: Today we're lucky to meet a famous writer Jane Baker who has just returned to her home. Nice to see you, Jane!

JB: Nice to see you too. It's a pleasure to be here.

I: Let me ask you some questions. How was your life abroad?

JB: Actually, I missed some things and just the atmosphere of home.

I: It seems like you didn't find home and peace abroad, did you?

JB: Well, I found it, but it was hard to get used to everything there, like culture, weather or people. That's why I decided to return.

I: Did you notice any changes in your hometown when you returned?

JB: Yes! Even though many buildings still stand, students go to school and life simply goes on, it was so shocking to find out that they've managed to build a subway!

I: A subway?! It's been only several years since you left... Quite fast...

JB: I was surprised, too. It was the main change in my town. Also, I've noticed new parks, so I'll go there later.

I: Well, let's talk about the book you're planning to write.

Could you tell us about the plot?

JB: Of course. The story takes place in my hometown. It's about a little boy who's trying to find happiness in small things around him. I believe this book may encourage children to go outside and explore new places.

I: Sounds interesting! And what's the title of the book?

JB: «Happiness around us».

I: I'm already intrigued! Thank you for your interview. We'll be happy to read your story!
