ANSWER SHEET 10-14

The source of inspiration

I - Hello, Jane. I want to ask you some questions about your life and the upcoming book, so I hope you do not mind if we jump straight to the point.

JB - Hello. Of course I do not mind and would be happy to answer your questions.

I - Alright. Why did you return to your hometown? Your career abroad was very successful.

JB - To be honest, I liked living abroad, but I've realized that I miss my old life here and made the decision to go back.

I - After so many years abroad, do you feel like the town has changed?

JB - Indeed. The buildings are the same, but the people I used to know are too different now. ~~They all have come so far and have other lives and ambitions.~~

I - Interesting. Now, about your future book. Where do you draw inspiration from?

JB - Actually, I was feeling so nostalgic lately that I spent much time in the town archives. Our town's past is very surprising - did you know that this town was the last one in the UK to stop witch trials?

I - It's a surprise indeed, but isn't it a book for children? Why have you picked such a topic?

JB - Of course, I won't include the actual trials! They're just very similar with our urban legends which were made up for fun. I do not want to scare the kids, I want to entertain them.

I - I get it now. So, the last question is, when are you planning to publish the book?

JB - This is a surprise for now, but I'll announce it quite soon. Goodbye.
