- A book that will sparkle up everyone's interest in our history
- I: Today I am interviewing a famous writer Jane Baker who has returned to her home after living abroad for several years. So, what change is the most obvious in your opinion, Jane?
- 1) JB: The first thing I noticed when I arrived home was the presence of new tall buildings, ~~containing ten floors~~. The town has definitely prospered while I was absent.
- I: It's good to know ~~that~~ you had a good impression about our town. ~~Did~~ Did you see any changes in people around you?
- 2) JB: Yes, I did. I noticed that there are ^{much} more children on the streets ~~than it used to be a few years ago. That's a good change.~~
- I: Was this your source of inspiration for your upcoming book?
- 3) JB: Yes, exactly. I saw how vivid the town has become, how much it has changed. I decided to write a book about ^{our} history of our town to make our children love their home even more.
- I: ~~A history book, is it?~~ Have you gathered some historical facts for it already?
- 4) JB: I've done some research and I've found some facts ~~even~~ surprising even myself. For example, did you know that George Washington once stayed in our city for two months?
- I: Wow, that's definitely something I didn't expect to hear. So, when are you planning to publish your book?
- 5) JB: The work isn't ~~ready~~ completed, but I can assure you that it will be published in two months.
- I: That's some great news. Alright, thank you for letting me interview you. ~~Goodbye, Jane.~~ I wish you good luck in finishing your book.
