Home sweet home

I: Today we're having a special guest - Jane Baker!
Welcome, Jane.

JB: Thank you very much for having me here! It's nice to be at home again.

I: Good to hear! Jane, could you tell our readers about yourself?

JB: Sure. ~~My name is J~~ I am a writer, as many may know. For the past few years I had been living in another country but decided to come back home, as you see.

I: That's a serious decision! May I ask what was the reason for your returning?

JB: Well, to tell the truth, while being out of my town, I felt extremely homesick. My heart just couldn't bear being apart ~~for~~ from my parents!

I: Oh, poor you! I guess it was impossible for you not to notice that something became different here. Tell me how are you feeling about it?

JB: Oh, I love it! It's a pleasure to see how prosperous my hometown has become! More parks and schools, less plants and abandoned houses.

I: Glad you like it. Now, I heard you're planning a book for children. Maybe, you can tell us a bit more about it?

JB: No problem! While living abroad, I used to think about my childhood which I spent here playing with my friends, so I decided to make a story based on my childhood memories to show that I love my hometown more than

I: Genius! What genre have you chosen for your book?

JB: I think it'll be an adventurous story that I am going to publish in a few months!

I: We're looking forward to read your new book! Thank you for the interview.
